The University of Iowa proposes a new program to provide an integrated and coordinated management of incidents and behaviors that threaten the safety and well-being of the community. The program, known as the "Iowa Terror Assessment Program (TAP)," involves a comprehensive approach to identify, assess, and manage incidents of potential violence or harm. The program is designed to enhance the university's ability to respond effectively to incidents of concern, thereby improving the overall safety and security of the campus community.

The TAP, established in 2008, is a collaborative effort involving key stakeholders from various university departments, including the Office of Safety and Security, the Office of the General Counsel, and the Department of Public Safety. The program is designed to provide a holistic approach to identifying and addressing potential threats, ensuring a coordinated response to prevent harm and protect the university community.

Section 1: The necessity for establishing the TAP program

Section 2: The objectives of the TAP program

Section 3: The implementation and coordination of the TAP program

Section 4: The role of the TAP in enhancing campus safety and security

Section 5: The monitoring and evaluation of the TAP program's effectiveness

The proposed TAP program is expected to enhance the university's ability to respond to incidents of potential harm, thereby contributing to a safer and more secure campus environment.
The University Assessment Program is implemented through the Threat Assessment Team
